The B cell population of individuals with multiple myeloma can be subdivided into antigen-selected and nonselected cells, which preferentially express HLA-DR or IgM, respectively. We have used the flow cytometric technique of indirect immunofluorescence to follow the modulation of HLA-DR antigen expression on the surface of immunoglobulin (Ig)-producing cells after single depleting doses of complement-fixing antibodies against Ia antigens on myeloma cells. The pattern of modulation of HLA-DR on Ig-producing B cells has been used to distinguish among three possible models for HLA-DR antigen modulation in myeloma: no change, selection of antigen-specific cells with HLA-DR antigen downregulation, and selection of antigen-specific cells with increased HLA-DR expression. Under limiting dilution assay conditions, the density of antigen-specific cells with Ig secretion is two orders of magnitude higher than the density of non-antigen-selected cells. A similar but more discrete pattern of HLA-DR expression is also observed on myeloma cell lines in the presence of mouse monoclonal anti-DR alloantibody. However, the fluorescence intensity of HLA-DR on myeloma cell lines in the presence of monoclonal anti-DR antibody is 40 to 70 percent of that seen on the Ig-producing B cells. These results support the hypothesis that modulation of HLA-DR occurs on both myeloma and antigen-specific cells and that it may be a late event in the evolution of antibody-secreting cells.Posted: December 29, 2011 S&L Pinball is excited to share our plans for our next pinball machine for 2012. We have a brand new game in the works that we will be unveiling this winter (any day now) and we are pretty excited about it! It's going to be quite a challenge to describe,

The horse plasma, sera, spinal, cerebrospinal and vitreous humours, saliva, bile, pancreatic juice, nasal and anal glands, faeces, urine, milk and uterine secretions were studied. The cholinesterase of horse plasma, sera, spinal, cerebrospinal and vitreous humours, saliva and milk showed typical features of the acetylcholinesterase which did not differ from that of human plasma. The cholinesterase of horse bile, pancreatic juice, faeces, urine, uterine and nasal glands were of the butyrylcholinesterase type and did not differ from human and pig bile, pancreatic and vaginal fluids. In the horse anal glands the activity of both acetylcholinesterase and butyrylcholinesterase was found; the specific activity of acetylcholinesterase was higher than that of butyrylcholinesterase. The specific activity of the cholinesterase in the horse saliva was much lower than that of the human saliva, and very similar to the activity of the horse plasma. The horse uterine secretion has a very low cholinesterase activity. In an interview on f678ea9f9e
